PETER RUSSELL

PHYSICIST · PSYCHOLOGIST · PHILOSOPHER

Peter Russell's contemporaries have lauded him as "one of the finest minds of our time," "The New Buckminster Fuller," and an "Eco-Philosopher Extraordinaire." With summa cum laude degrees from the University of Cambridge, England, in theoretical physics (he was a student of Stephen Hawking), psychology, as well as computer science, he brings a sharp, critical mind to world affairs.

Ironically, it was Peter's passion for mathematics and physics that lead to a thirty-year exploration into the nature of consciousness. Fascinated by the mysteries of the human mind, he traveled to India to study meditation and eastern philosophy, and on his return to the UK took up the first research post ever offered in Britain on the neuropsychology of meditation. During his post-graduate degree in computer science he conducted some of the early work on three-dimensional displays, presaging by some twenty years the advent of virtual reality.

Peter Russell pioneered the introduction of personal development skills to the corporate world, running highly acclaimed programs on creativity, stress management, and sustainable environmental practices for clients such as IBM, Apple, Digital, American Express, Barclays Bank, Swedish Telecom, ICI, Shell Oil and BP.

He is the best-selling author of ten books. His multi-image shows and videos have won praise and prizes from around the world. As one of the more truly forward-thinking futurists, Peter appears frequently on radio and television, and is a sought-after and respected speaker in the USA, Canada, Europe, and Japan.

Peter divides his time between his houseboat in Sausalito, California, and London, England.
